

How Will MAARC Benefit Me?

MAARC meetings and our Radio Age journal provide presentations and articles covering all aspects of our interests in vintage electronics. This includes everything from repair techniques, to cabinet refinishing, to test equipment, to tube collecting, to electronics history.

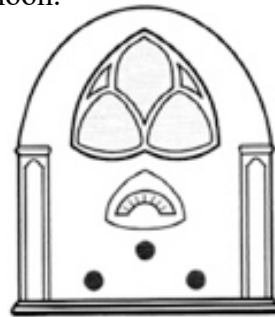

Looking for a little fun?

MAARC members enjoy hanging out with techies who share similar interests and passions. We hold a banquet and restored equipment contest at our annual Radio-Activity event.

Guests are invited to our monthly 3rd Sunday meetings in Davidsonville, MD (Feb, Mar, May, Jul, Aug, Sep, & Nov) or Centreville, VA (Apr & Dec). Tailgate sales for these events start at 10:30 AM, with the meeting including a Show and Tell and a topical presentation at 1:00 PM. This is followed by an auction of a wide variety of vintage electronics. Our October Fallfest in Davidsonville kicks off with tailgating and a huge auction at noon.

MID-ATLANTIC ANTIQUE RADIO CLUB

Other events include our 3-day RadioActivity event held in June at a conference facility within the DC/Baltimore region. MAARC members receive monthly issues of our vintage electronics journal Radio Age (containing interesting and informative articles), on-line access to past Radio Age copies, and to the club's members-only Internet discussion forum. If you are a member of the National Capital Radio & Television Museum (NCRTM), you get a onetime first year MAARC dues discount. NCRTM, offers photocopies of service literature at low cost (see NCRTM.org.)

The Mid-Atlantic Antique Radio Club (MAARC) is a hobby club for those dedicated to collecting, restoring, and preserving vintage electronics. Collecting antique radio, television, hi-fi audio/stereo, electronic instruments, and test equipment is a fun and interesting pastime that appeals to a variety of folks. Members include pure collectors who are looking for their next great find, technicians and tinkerers who like to restore the electronics or refinish cabinets, historians and preservationists interested in the history of the technology, and those who are into it as a small business. Many involved dabble in several of these areas.

All enjoy the camaraderie of a shared interest. You will find vintage electronics collectors to be a friendly and honest group who do not take themselves too seriously, while recognizing they are preserving a part of our heritage.

MAARC Offers You the Opportunity to Buy or Sell Vintage Electronics

All MAARC meetings feature a flea market tailgating period and an auction. Both provide the opportunity to buy and sell old radios, hi-fi audio, ham equipment, tubes, vintage electronics parts, service equipment, and literature at good prices.

Monthly meeting tailgate sales are without any fees. Auction buyers pay no fees, while sellers pay just a small commission. Of course, there is no guarantee that all items will sell, though most do.

The monthly auctions tend to be more informal, with no minimum bids and often, no reserves. Because of the prices typically realized, the monthly auctions tend to be good opportunities to buy and sell lesser quality items and parts.

Twice a year we offer larger meets with bigger flea markets and auctions. These larger auctions have higher quality offerings and are more likely to garner better prices. They may have minimum opening bids, consignment limits, and other policy requirements to help manage the auction. These two events, RadioActivity and RadioFallFest, are normally in June and October respectively.
